Jared Brown
WEB 320
12/3/2017
Assignment 1.1

One of the main design principles of this design is to satisfy the users requirements. This sketch shows a design based off some of Google's Material Design standards which has become a popular standard. In this case, I have gotten rid of all the borders of the input box except the bottom border. I have replaced labels with placeholder text. This is a rather popular design choice currently, and most users should be familiar with the concept. As the user types in one of the inputs, the other will be updated with the appropriate value.

The second design principle that this uses is simplicity and minimalism. It is not a difficult-by-design design and does not have any function creep or unnecessary buttons. It follows the principals of the minimalistic design found in the book but it employs modern design standards which reduces trapped white space and balances the shape.